Overview:

The Sierra Nevada Resort & Spa was built in 1969 by Jerry Bus, a major real estate developer and owner of the Los Angeles Lakers. With Bus's many connections in the entertainment industry, the resort quickly became a popular retreat for the Hollywood jet set, including stars like John Wayne and Jerry Lewis. When Jim and Nancy Demetriades purchased the historical property, it was in need of some TLC, so they began a renovation project, completing stage one in 2009 and stage two in 2013. Improvements include the addition of one-, two- and three-bedroom chalets, upgraded fireplace suites, updated bedrooms, the new day spa and the kids' Cub Club area.

Background/Quote

“We fell in love with Mammoth and its wonderful community,” says owner Nancy Demetriades. “We enjoy bringing our five children here – it’s our backyard – and introducing them to skiing, the outdoors. We wanted them to be well-rounded individuals.”

“Where did Ansel Adams and John Muir go? They came to the Sierras,” says Jim Demetriades. “The beauty in the back of the Sierras is unsurpassed.”
